IJMD publishes papers in all functional areas of management that address issues of capacity building to enhance the performance of organisations. Management development is basically synonymous with capacity building to run enterprises in a more efficient way. IJMD provides an outlet for applied scholarly work in all areas of management from economics and finance to organisational behaviour and development, with the only caveat being that research must show how it can enhance managerial capacities. Case studies and qualitative research are also welcome.

Topics covered include:

- Opportunities and challenges for managers in a dynamic, competitive and global environment
- Leadership, strategic management, long-term sustainability
- Managerial accounting issues, cost control, international dimension of accounting
- Education and knowledge management
- Women in management
- Quality/total quality management
- Technology management
- Corporate governance/social responsibility
- Public/environmental/community relations/affairs
- Human resource and workforce management, internal communications
- Marketing management, sales management, customer relationship and brand management
- Financial, portfolio and investment management
- International economic and financial issues
- Disaster/emergency/crisis/risk management
