Management of health-care waste is an integral part of hospital hygiene and infection control. Health-care waste should be considered as a reservoir of pathogenic microorganisms, which can cause contamination and give rise to infection. Numerous reports and research cite the nursing profession is facing leadership and management crisis related to healthy work environment. Creating a healthy work environment for nursing practice and education is critical issue to assure patient safety. Ethical leadership and problematic leadership behaviours impact on nursing and healthcare work environment should be highlighted and analysed. Research shows that there correlation between health organisation leadership and management and infection control practices.
