

Returning for its 5th year and following on from the major success of previous events, SMI's ADC Summit will take place on 23 – 24 May 2016 in London, UK.

With most ADC research currently still in pre-clinical stages, we are yet to see the full market potential how these products contribute to the treatment of cancer. The pharmaceutical industry is making every effort to produce the best next generation of ADCs by pioneering new approaches to eliminate cancer stem cells.

With sessions headed by key industry experts from leading pharmaceutical companies, SMI's 5th annual ADC Summit brings you timely discussions to overcome ongoing challenges in the development of ADCs. The two-day event will provide a comprehensive analysis of the various approaches with the next generation ADCs and offer some insight into how they can work in harmony with the field of oncology.

The Advisory Board:

- Rakesh Dixit, Vice President, R&D, Medimmune
- Mahendra Deonarain, Chief Science Officer, Antikor Biopharma Limited
- Dr. Shabnam Hanassab, Senior Consultant, IMS Health

Expert Panel for 2016 include:

- Ashish Gautam, Global Medical Lead – ADCETRIS, Takeda
- Ben-Fillippo Krippendorff, Principal Scientist, Roch
- Jeremy Parker, Principal Scientist, Pharmaceutical Development, AstraZeneca
- Debbie Meyer, Senior Principal Scientist, Pfizer
- Jens Lohrmann, Senior Global Program Manager, Novartis
