

Latam Oil & Gas 2017 Summit – 6th 7th June 2017 – Bogota, Colombia

Latin America has been seen as one of the most promising oil and gas regions and has become one of the main drivers of the global petroleum industry. In terms of reserves, the region ranks second after the Middle East. Besides the deep-water reserves and nonconventional hydrocarbon projects Latin America has attracted numerous international LNG companies.

The current situation of low oil prices is shaping the global oil and gas industry. However new challenges and opportunities are arising in the market. Latin America will provide a response to the growing demand for energy in the region and promote the investment on new technologies and improvement on production chain.

The Latam Oil & Gas 2017 will gather the industry's most important players in Colombia to discuss and analyse the state of the oil and gas industries in the region, outlining at the same time future prospects and business opportunities emerging in the sector.
