Scope of the Journal

ISSN: 2049-8683 (Print), ISSN: 2049-8691 (Online)

AJMSA addresses the broad area of management science and its applications in industry and business. It is particularly receptive to research relevant to the practice of management within the Asian region and its effects beyond. It covers studies on how management work is done (descriptive) and/or should be done (normative) in diverse organisational forms. These include for-profit/non-profit firms, private/public sector institutions and formal/informal social networks. It uses tools from fields such as OR/MS, mathematics, statistics, industrial engineering, psychology and sociology.

Topics covered include:

- Business strategy
- Computing and information technologies
- Decision analysis, optimisation
- Economics
- Environment, energy and natural resources
- Finance and risk management, revenue management
- Industrial engineering and human factors
- Marketing science
- Operations management
- Organisations
- Policy modelling and public sector OR
- Product development and management
- Service science
- Simulation and stochastic models
- Transportation
