Scope of the Journal

IJAPR presents original research on the theoretical, experimental and applied aspects of pattern analysis, extraction, classification and clustering. The journal focuses on areas such as feature selection, feature extraction, large data problems, online learning, classifiers and perception models. IJAPR acknowledges and encourages submissions reflecting the importance of large data analysis and online learning in industrial applications.

Contents:

IJAPR publishes original regular papers, research reviews, and short papers on the design, development, evaluation, testing and standardisation of pattern recognition applications. Special issues devoted to important and emerging topics in pattern recognition applications as well as to related international events on these topics will also be published.

Topics covered include:

- Face recognition and analysis
- Speech recognition and analysis
- Natural object recognition and analysis
- Image recognition
- Speaker recognition
- Biometric recognition
- Predictive modelling applications
- Large data forecasting applications
- Insect and plant recognition
- Geographic applications
- Natural language recognition
- Pattern recognition in biosciences applications
- Pattern recognition in health informatics applications
- Pattern recognition in library applications
- Pattern recognition in computational science applications
