Scope of the Journal

ISSN: 2053-3950 (Print), ISSN: 2053-3969 (Online)

IJASSE provides an international, peer-reviewed forum which focuses on system-level research and development regarding astronautics and aeronautics. The journal emphasises the unique role and increasing importance of informatics on aerospace. It fills a gap in current publishing coverage between outer space vehicles and atmospheric vehicles by highlighting interdisciplinary techniques, presenting systematic mechanisms and assembly integration and verification (AIV) techniques from a bionic point of view.

Contents

IJASSE publishes regular papers, review papers, short technical notes, and letters. Regular papers publish of significant research and development in the technical areas listed.

Review papers should be of a quality that represents the state of the art in the field and future trends. Short technical notes usually describe a single result, experiment, or technique of general interest. Letters are comments on published papers and corrections to papers.

Topics covered include:

- Dynamics and flight mechanics
- Vibration and noise control
- Avionics and optoelectronic systems
- Guidance, navigation and control
- Microelectromechanical systems (MEMS)
- Data fusion and information processing
- Space robotics and intelligent systems
- Bionic micro-aircraft/spacecraft
- Deep space exploration
- Systems analysis, design and integration
