Scope of the Journal

ISSN: 1759-0256 (Print), ISSN: 1759-0264 (Online)

IJCLM subscribes to a broad understanding of complexity in leadership, governance, management and organisational dynamics. It explores how various concepts such as complexity, nonlinearity, consciousness, intrinsic intelligence, collective intelligence, connectivity, autopoiesis, adaptation, diversity, self-organisation, emergence, dissipation, edge of chaos, butterfly effect and sustainability may help generate new effective leadership, governance and management theories, strategies and practices. It also explores how such fresh mindsets and strategic nonlinear thinking may become an integral part of all innovative and competitive organisations, economies and nations.

Topics covered include:

- New theoretical comprehension, associated issues and strategies
- Empirical research in frameworks and practices
- Case studies of human systems
- Theoretical discourse of various theories
- Complexity lens/metaphors and their usage
- Complexity adaptive dynamics, complexity/intelligence-centric processes
- Particular sectors/activities
- Leadership at the edge of chaos/rugged landscape
- Leadership sensitive to initial input, innovation and creativity
- Nonlinear intelligence/thinking, knowledge management, organisational learning
- Complexity/intelligence mindset, intelligence paradigm automation
