Scope of the Journal

ISSN: 1756-2511 (Print), ISSN: 1756-252X (Online)

Society faces many significant challenges: pollution, poverty, pain, terrorism, crime, greenhouse effect, war, disease, starvation, road accidents, inflation/deflation, unemployment, pornography, great suffering, ignorance, pesticide poisoning, falsehood, etc. It could be argued that scientists have spent too much time on many not-so-urgent issues and too little effort on these challenges. IJSSS addresses the barriers between: social and natural sciences, theory and applications, hard decision models and soft ones, different business disciplines, government and industry, ivory tower and real society.

Topics covered include:

- Analytical hierarchy process, data envelopment analysis
- Behavioural science, clinical psychology, ethics
- Benchmarking, organisational informatics
- Business strategy
- Decision support systems, decision theory, computer simulation
- [Urban] development policy/management, economics, geography/society
- Education, healthcare and legal systems
- E-government, politics, public/international affairs, e-society
- Environmental protection, sustainable development
- Expert systems, fuzzy logic, goal programming
- Information sciences/technology, IT and organisations
- Media and communications, knowledge management
- Science, technology and society
- Social informatics, networking, psychology, responsibility
- Sociology, social sciences, social security systems, socio-technical networks
