Scope of the Journal

ISSN: 1755-9995 (Print), ISSN: 1756-0004 (Online)

IJTAMM is a fully-refereed journal that encourages the sharing of knowledge and discoveries amongst researchers in mechanics working at different length scales. Its scope is broad to encompass mechanics research at the atomistic, micro and macro length scales. It includes experimental, computational and theoretical works in both solid and fluid mechanics.

Topics covered include:

- Atomistic modelling, Eigenstrain theory, Eigenvalue problems
- Big data analysis and high-performance computing application in mechanics
- Computational fluid mechanics of finite-difference, finite-volume methods
- Constitutive and co-current modelling and phenomenology of engineering processes
- Experimental mechanics of multi-body and multi-level structures and materials, NDT
- Mechanics-based modern engineering systems design, validation and manufacturing
- Mechanics of surface structure, surface finishing and surface engineering
- Mechanics of thin films, thin layer, residual and thermal stresses quantification
- Mechanical characteristics of elasticity, plasticity, viscoelasticity and viscoplasticity
- Mechanics of metal, composite, renewable, recyclable, bio and smart materials
- Mechanics of cutting-edge additive and subtractive manufacturing and processing
- Multiscale, multiphysics, multi-phase in transitional and turbulent flows
- Nanomechanics, micromechanics, mechanics of MEMS, NEMS system
- Solid mechanics of finite-element and boundary-element modelling and simulation
