Scope of the Journal

ISSN: 2052-0336 (Print), ISSN: 2052-0344 (Online)

The Latin American region has experienced rapid political and economic change over recent decades. The challenges for its managers and academics are often different to those experienced in other parts of the world. Considering that Latin America is a relevant player in global societal challenges, LAJMSD provides an international forum for a better understanding of best practices of management focusing on sustainable development. It offers an enthusiastic scientific platform that contributes to the Latin business society in sustainability transitions.

Topics covered include:

- Sustainable development management
- Latin America – emerging and developing countries
- Strategy, competencies, capabilities and innovations for sustainability
- Corporate social responsibility
- Education for sustainable development
- Climate change and global warming
- Greener, cleaner, more sustainable and responsible operation practices
- Diversity, inclusion, workplace and organisational behaviour
- Harassment, rape, corruption, violence and crime reduction policies
- Disclosure, circular and low-carbon economy
- Traditional and native community
